Lions' Club Objectives

We were interested in reading the objectives of the new Lions Club, which was recently formed in Appomattox. They are listed as:

1. To form a body of men thoroughly representative of the business and professional interests of the town of Appomattox; to unite its members in the closest bonds of good fellowship and to promote a high business and social union among them.

2. To encourage active participation, in all things that have to do with commercial, civic and industrial betterment.

3. To uphold the principles of good government.

4. To assist in every honorable way in furthering the interests of its members, and toward bringing about a better understanding among men.

5. To teach that organization, cooperation, and reciprocity are better than rivalry, strife, and destructive competition.

6. To co-operate with other organizations engaged in worthwhile endeavors for the public's welfare.

7. To encourage the application of the highest ethical standards in business, and endeavor, by the exchange of methods and ideas, to increase efficiency in all lines represented.

Surely an organization with such a program has a place in every town. We shall watch with keen anticipation the service we know the Lions Club will render in Appomattox.

No One Wins

H. G. Wells, the famed prognosticator, sees the war as bringing "an outcome less hopeful than in 1914." The English historian views the future in the light of the past and declares that "for me it is not merely winning the war, only whether the world will know better times after it is ended." He says that the struggle is not a "new war," but a continuation of the conflict of 1914 which created rather than solved problems.

Mr. Wells recognizes a fundamental truth in his disinclination to prophesy who will win the war. He knows that no one wins. -Winchester Star.

Italy: 1914 and 1939

On April 26, 1915, Italy signed a secret treaty at London with Britain, France and Russia and on May 4 she denounced her treaty of alliance with the Central Powers.

Under the new treaty Italy was to receive the Trentino; all of Southern Tyrol to Brenner Pass; Trieste, Gorizas, Gradisca, Istria and Dalmatia and all the Austrian islands of the Adriatic. She was to annex Valona and its hinterland (Albania), but she was not to object if later the peacemakers decided to apportion parts of Albania to Montenegro, Serbia and Greece.

Nor was that all. Italy was to strengthen her hold on Libya, across the Mediterranean, and if Britain and France increased their territory in Africa at the expense of Germany, Italy was to have the right of enlarging hers. In the Eastern Mediterranean she was to retain the 12 Greek speaking islands known as the Dodecanese, and when Turkey was partitioned she was to have her slice.

Britain and France never made entirely good on these promises. Italy received part payment, but by no means all. Especially has she felt cheated in Africa. Britain and France divided most of Germany's African colonies between themselves, leaving Italy holding a "collection of desert sand."

When France and Britain tried to frustrate her Ethiopian adventure, Italy felt they were adding injury to insult. Had they not formally agreed in London that, if they enlarged their African holdings, she was to have the right to do the same?

Today Britain and France are again wooing Italy. Again it is said they are trying to wean her away from Berlin— probably by more promises. Only this time Rome doubtless is reminding them of a certain "scrap of paper," dated April 26, 1915.

Today, as then, Italy probably realizes that her best interests, in the long run, parallel those of Britain and France, rather than Germany. And today, if a r more than then, she has a good reason for breaking her alliance— namely, Hitler's partnership with Stalin. The outcome, which is still in doubt, may play as decisive a role in this war as it did in the other.-From Scripps-Howard newspapers.

Westside Evergreen

Westside Evergreen, Sept. 28- Notwithstanding the fact that the early hay crop was a failure, the summer rains have been so abundant that the late hay crop is one of the most bountiful in years. Everywhere one goes, the barns are filled to the utmost capacity, and the landscape is dotted with hay stacks. On a recent motor trip through the Southwest and the Valley of Virginia, the writer witnessed, as it were, a continual movie picture of farmers engaged in harvesting the abundant hay crop.

The pastures were green and the herds of fat cattle were many. What contrast to a trip over this same route in August, 1932, when the pastures were dry enough to burn, and the farmers were, in many cases, hauling water for their cattle to drink. It was my privilege the other day to visit in the homes of one, if not actual, octogenarians. They are both rather feeble, but the mother has, in recent years, got the sight of first one eye and then the other in spite of all that medical skill could do. But as I sat and talked with them, I observed this good woman as, unaided, she prepared the noonday meal. Seeming never to get bored as she worked over her large range.

Mr and Mrs. R y Conner, of Lynchburg, were the week-end guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Conner.

The usual large congregation witnessed the ordination of the Rev. C. A. Collins, Jr. at the Evergreen Baptist church Sunday. Among the ministers who had a part in the program were: Dr. Burrell, of Farmville; Dr. P. T. Harman, of West Lynchburg, who preached the ordination sermon; Dr. Scott, Rev. W. M. Black, Rev. Welch, Rev. Harris and Rev. G. A. Chocklett, and Rev. O. G. Burnette. Rev. Collins is continuing his studies at Lynchburg College.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Garrett, of Lynchburg, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Paulette, attending church with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Covington were Sunday guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jennings Ferguson, Sunday. Other visitors in this home Sunday included Mr. and Mrs. Willard Paulette, of Richmond.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Hudnall visited the former's uncle, W. W. Farrar Monday. Callers at Westside Sunday included Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Farrar, of Prospect, Mrs. W. L. Austin, Mrs. Ada Farrar and Misses Ruby and Carrie Shanks.

Mrs. James Ingo and Mrs. W. C. Garrett visited Mrs. Carlean and Mrs. Nora Farrar today.

Apple blossoms are showing again.

Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Henley, Mrs. J. W. Jackson and Miss Dorothy Tate, of Richmond, were week-end guests of Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Collins, Jr.

Mrs. T. T. Evans and son, Pete, and Mr. and Mrs. Edd Duffner and Mrs. Helen Pringle, of Lynchburg, spent the week-end with Mrs. Evans' daughter, Mrs. W. S. Pope, of Little Rock, S. C.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Gibson and two sons, of Washington, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Warriner.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Martin, of Lynchburg, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Woolridge last Sunday.

Mrs. Jeter Woolridge, who has been spending several weeks with Mrs. W. W. Woolridge, returned to her home at Covington.

Mrs. J. C. Staples was the week-end guest of Mrs. Gaughter, Mrs. Sim White, of Lynchburg.

Frank Glover, of Washington, is spending a few wdays with home people.

Health Department Discusses Habits

"While anyone's daily life is dependent upon and regulated by habits, there is a definite distinction between those related to a healthy existence and those that adversely affect it. The great majority of victims of the more insidiously harmful habits would be reluctant to admit the fact. Indeed, many of them probably are not even aware that they are victims," states Dr. I. C. Riggin, Commissioner of Health.

"Among such persons are those who regularly depend upon stimulants of various kinds to give them their sense of well-being and vitality which is naturally associated with a vigorous body. After they have succumbed to varying degrees to high-speed living and thus slowly, often unconsciously, decreased normal vim, recourse to pick-ups of one kind or another becomes habitual. That the consumerty excessive use of boosters may eventually manifest itself in a lessened resistance to disease, in an overwright nervous system, or in illness, apparently needs mor: recognition than is given today.

"Again, the widespread, daily use of drugs to stimulate intestinal action invites injurious results. Regular bowel movements should be a natural process. The family physician is the one to be consulted if there are difficulties in the normal regulation essential to top-notch health. Lasting adherence to her basic law. Man's whims can not successfully oppose her. One wise person will respect this unalterable fact."

Norfolk and Western Railway Pays Largest State Tax

The coffers of Virginia's state treasury took on a sizable bulge this week, when the Commonwealth's largest single taxpayer, the Norfolk and Western Railway, paid its state taxes for the year, amounting to $1,045,893.62. The check for the huge sum was delivered in person by F. G. McGee, of Roanoke, the company's treasurer, to Governor James H. Price, at his office in Richmond.

The Norfolk and Western's tax payment represented about 25 per cent of the total state taxes paid by all public service corporations for 1939.

In addition to its state tax, the railroad will pay approximately a million dollars in taxes this year to 43 counties and 66 cities and towns of the Old Dominion—or a grand total of about $2,100,000.

Sydney F. Small, the railway's vice president in charge of taxation, pointed out that as the largest taxpayer of the State, the Norfolk and Western is the largest single contributor toward the maintenance of Virginia's public schools. A large per cent of rail taxes is used for this purpose. In a number of counties, Mr. Small added, more than 50 per cent of railroad taxes is used for school purposes,
